A BABY IN THE BASKET.

While the family of a Pittsburgh merchant were quietly taking their tea at their residence in Alleghany, the other evening, a ring was heard on the bell, and the door having been opened, a surprise awaited the household. The bired girl carried into the dining-room not a delicately-tinted and artistically-inscribed card,

L., who from the other end of the table returned his glance with a gaze so mild, so meaningless, that he saw there was no use in asking her what the basket contained. The hired girl was directed to open the mysterious package, which bore no cover, but was apparently filled with silk patchwork. Fold after fold was removed till, without as yet having brought to light anything but dry goods, Betsey held up her hands, and with horror depicted on her but a basket! Mr. L. looked inquiringly at Mrs.

Mr. L. arose from his chair in a determined manner, and went over to investigate the contents of the basket. The mystery was soon solved. It was the old story. Bell rung-door opened-basket found suspended to door kuob -baby in basket.

face, exclaimed: "It's alive!"

That tells the whole story of the finding of the basket, but words cannot express the anguish of the look which Mrs. L. let fall upon her confused and speechless husband as she raised her handkerchief to her eyes, and curned away to conceal her emotion. This was too much for poor L., who at heart is not a bad man, but given to staying away from home a little too much, perhaps, in the evening. But he always had a good excuse for his absence. The lodge, of course, had to be attended to. Then the spelling matches are something in which he was particularly interested, and these kept him away from home frequently till bed time. There are dozens of reasons which any man who has been married a few hears can find always at No. 23 South Royal street, Alexandria, Va. command to excuse his absences, and all these had been used by him with variations till te could as easily account for six nights of the week as the champion orthographer can answer every conundrum in Osgood's speller. Now he felt crushed. There was the baby in the basket, poor little dear, kicking and try-ing to eat its fists as contentedly as if in its own home, but there was no note, not a line of explanation. L. felt that he ought to say some-by her hand, implored her not to go away, but listen to him. He would be honest with her. He had been careless and neglectful sometimes, perhaps, but he was not guilty of this. Still she struggled to be free, but he would not let her go, and again she cried out: "Oh, what good can it do you to deny it?" But he denied it again and again, and vowed he would do anything in the world for her who had always been so loving to him. But he could not bear to have her doubt him. He would stay at home nights now as long as he lived, or else take her where he went, but he could not live to see her breaking her heart eyes and assured her that he loved her as ever, and then he begged her to dry her eyes and be happy. He was innocent now, and he would not again be absent from his hearthstone on any night during the remainder of his life.

What could she do? She was only a woman, and she believed and forgave him. Perhaps some wives will say she was "soft" or "spoony in permitting herself to believe in him again. but she did it. She gave him her other hand freely, and he arose and embraced her as he was wont to do when they were young and confiding. He relt happy in his forgiveness, and looking into her grave but not unhappy face, he said, "Well, Mary, this adds one more to he said, "Well, Mary, this adds one more to our little family. We have two of the little innocents to cherish and protect, and we will do it to the best of our ability."

Send for Circulars.

[From Rev. E. T. Baird, Secretary of Publication of Presbyterian Church South.1

RICHMOND, July 27, 1874. The Xanthine is the only hair dressing I have ever used which has removed the dandruff from he scalp and made my hair soft and pliable. It has also restored my hair to its natural color : and by occasionally using it as a hair dressing,
I have no doubt it will preserve the color.

E. T. BAIRD.

From Rev. Charles H. Head, D. D., Pastor Grace street Presbyterian Church,] RICHMOND, July 20, 1874.

At the suggestion and presentation of a friend, I have used one bottle of Prof. Hertz's Hair Restorative, "Xanthine." It has accomplished in a very brief time and without any perceptible unpleasant or injurious effects, all that is claimed for it as a restorer of the natural color of hair turning gray.

CHAS. H. READ.

From J. W. Lockwood, Cashier, National Bank of Virginia.] RICHMOND, VA., June 25, 1874. Dear Sir—I used on my hair about one third of a bottle of the Xanthine, and the result has been its restoration to its original color.

J. W. LOCK WOOD.

To the Proprietor of the "Xanthine:"
I have occasionally used your compound, known as "Xanthine," with results perfectly satisfactory as to cleaning the scalp, strengthening the hair and restoring its color.

Respectfully yours, WM. B. ISAACS,
